

MIDDLE SCHOOL TECHNOLOGY COORDINATOR

July 1, 2015

Sewickley Academy, a private, coed, college-preparatory day school in Sewickley, Pennsylvania (about 12 miles outside Pittsburgh), seeks a Middle School Technology Coordinator. The Middle School Technology Coordinator is responsible for leading and supporting Middle School faculty in integrating technology into the educational program, especially as the school launches a one-to-one, bring-your-own-device program for students in the fall of 2015. This is a full-time, twelve month faculty position that includes teaching two digital arts courses and contributing to the PK-12 Technology Support Department. The Middle School Technology Coordinator reports to the Head of the Middle School. The preferred candidate will have a Master's degree in a related field, 3-5 years of previous Middle School experience, and a desire to contribute to the life of the Academy in and out of the classroom.

Responsibilities include:

Instruction:

- Teach digital arts and computer science classes in the Middle School
- Coach the FLL Robotics Team
- Design and deliver technology skills instruction to Middle School students
- Design and deliver technology support and training to Middle School faculty
- Educate the Middle School community, including parents, on best practices of digital citizenship

Curricular Coordination:

- Inspire and support faculty to integrate technology into the curriculum following the SAMR model
- Select, promote, and model technology use that encourages and supports core 21st Century academic skills
- Collaborate with the Lower and Senior School Technology Coordinators on curriculum mapping according to Understanding by Design principles
- Keep current with the latest technology trends, including digital citizenship, programming languages, and tool and app development
- Promote the legal and ethical use of technology

Technology Support:

- Provide ongoing support as needed
